They have not both obliged to bestir themselves to secure or hold the trade. It has been theirs without an effort. Outside competition has hardly at all enors. Onisiae competer position has been re-affected them. Their position has been re-mote; routes of transportation to and from Orehave been long and circuitous, and the solation of the country has given those who sociation of the country has given those who matter. He was appropriately made chair-Not much longer will these conditions con-tinue. The railroads, soon to be completed. will throw open our doors not only to popu the house a bill making extravagant allowon from the east but to the enterprise and competition of eastern capital and business. When that time comes Portland will be obliged o depend on her energy for means to hold her ground. So far she has prospered steadily through the fortune of opportunity. She has grown by merely sitting still. She has many trophies, but they are trophics of her fortune and not of her enterprise. New forces will she ought to make preparation to meet them Unless she does this the pervading energy of eastern enterprise will make heavy inroads upon her trade, check her prosperity and give her a hard struggle to recover lost ground.
